WEBSITE GROWTH AUDIT

Fatma Al Moosa Advocate and Legal Consultancy

fatmaalmoosa.com | Dubai, UAE | Prepared for the Fatma Al Moosa team

A Dubai law firm that claims to be one of the largest appears to lose enquiries to dead menu links and thin proof.

What I found on your website

What I saw	What it costs you	The fix
Menu items Our Services, About us and Products appear to link to #, and a Products item appears on a law firm site.	Dead links and an odd menu item confuse visitors who came to hire a lawyer.	Working links and a menu built around practice areas.
The page appears to claim one of the leading and largest law firms in Dubai, with no lawyer names, case results or reviews shown.	A big claim with no proof pushes clients to firms that show results.	Named lawyers, results and client reviews.
The firm name with Law Firm appears repeated in awkward sentences, and English (US) appears twice in the language menu.	Clumsy repeats look unfinished to corporate and private clients.	Rewritten homepage copy and a clean language switch.
No WhatsApp appears, only a phone number and a contact link.	Clients in Dubai expect to message a firm first.	WhatsApp and a booking form for a case review.
