WEBSITE GROWTH AUDIT

L'Atelier Aesthetics

latelieraesthetics.co.uk | Harley Street, London | Prepared for Dr Duncan Brennand

Your 101 Harley Street clinic has a named GMC doctor, Google reviews and press logos, but there is no visible proof of results and details do not match.

What I found on your website

What I saw	What it costs you	The fix
No before and after images or patient photos appear, no prices show on the homepage, and there is no WhatsApp. Booking is a separate page.	Aesthetic patients choose on results and cost, and may not click through to find them.	Captioned results, from prices and a short booking form.
One Susie MacLean review appears twice with different Google links, Eva Webb's review shares Susie's link, and every reviewer shows the same placeholder logo.	Repeated reviews and one link for different people weaken the proof you do have.	A clean review wall with each review linked correctly.
Typos include entrpeneur, renown, Silhoutte and Backgound. The header says Rated 4.9 while the badge says 5 Star Rated On Google.	Spelling slips on a Harley Street page cost credibility.	Proofread copy and one consistent rating.
Visit us and Learn More point to anchors #findus and #meetdrduncan, the chemical peels link differs between body and menu, and the doctor appears as Dr Duncan Brennand, Duncan Brennand and Dr. Brennand.	Mismatched links and names look careless.	Working links and one consistent name.
