WEBSITE GROWTH AUDIT

Simple Divorce (Sadiq Law)

simpledivorce.ca | Toronto | Prepared for Mr. Sadiq and team

Simple Divorce has a large team, a clear service structure and several ways to book. Dead menu links, conflicting numbers and cut off text weaken trust for clients who are choosing a lawyer under stress.

What I found on your website

What I saw	What it costs you	The fix
Many menu items link to #, including About, Practice Areas, Help Center, Litigation, Arbitration, Common Law and several Help Center sections.	A client who clicks Practice Areas and sees nothing happen leaves, and your best content goes unseen.	Working menus and a simple structure of the five services clients look for most.
The page says 5,700+ divorces and also 3,000+ satisfied clients, and Since 2013 does not match 16 years in business.	Conflicting numbers make clients doubt every claim, which is the opposite of what a proof section should do.	One verified set of numbers shown the same way everywhere.
Testimonials are cut off mid thought with ellipses, with no dates. Typos include proccess, Divison of Property, reccomend and Salmon for Salman.	Cut off reviews and typos in a law firm's own copy weaken the trust the testimonials are meant to build.	Full, dated reviews and a proofread build.
The consultation form appears two or three times, and booking goes to a separate domain (sadiqlaw.as.me). There is no chat or WhatsApp.	A client sent to an unfamiliar domain may question whether it is legitimate, and repeated forms split your enquiries.	One form on your own domain, one booking button and a chat or WhatsApp option.

What your new website will do for Simple Divorce (Sadiq Law)

- A consultation first homepage with one clear button, one short form and a visible price summary.
- Practice area pages that work, written to rank for searches like uncontested divorce Toronto and separation agreement Toronto.
- Proof beside every button: full dated reviews, one set of verified numbers and your team.
