WEBSITE GROWTH AUDIT

Toronto Realty Boutique

torontorealtyboutique.com | Toronto, Canada | Prepared for Romey Halabi

A Toronto boutique brokerage appears to lose seller leads because key menu items go nowhere and there is no valuation form.

What I found on your website

What I saw	What it costs you	The fix
The Selling, Buying, About, Featured Listings, Pre-Construction and Education Hub menu items appear to link to #.	Visitors cannot reach the pages that bring in sellers and buyers.	Working pages behind every menu item.
The menu links to What Is Your Property Worth, but no valuation form appears, only a phone number and email.	Owners ready for a valuation have no easy way to ask.	An on page valuation form.
Two different office addresses and phone numbers appear, 15 plus years and 17 plus years appear, and the listing cards appear twice.	Inconsistent details and repeats weaken trust.	One verified set of details and clean listings.
Instagram posts appear to use a placeholder image, and testimonials appear without last names or sale details.	Placeholders and thin proof reduce credibility.	A working feed and detailed testimonials.

What your new website will do for Toronto Realty Boutique

- Working menus.
- Valuation form.
- Consistent details and proof.
